Resistance to the Neoliberal Agri-Food Regime
A Critical Analysis

Edited by Alessandro Bonanno, Sam Houston State University, USA and Steven A. Wolf, Cornell University, USA

Series: Earthscan Food and Agriculture

Through a set of thematic and case study chapters, this volume explores the contents, forms, and actors that characterize current opposition to the corporate neoliberal agri-food regime. It proposes a combination of empirical and theoretical contributions that elucidates the power of the neoliberal corporate system and the manner in which opposition has emerged and has been carried out. It will interest sociologists, economists and geographers concerned with agriculture, rural and food studies.
